The Indian education is at the cross roads India has a relatively young population with over five hundred million citizens under thirty. The demand for education and the recognition that it is vital for personal advancement and enforcement has now penetrated all levels of society. With the economy projected to grow at an average of eight percent the demand for skilled labour is exploding. The transition from an agrarian/rural economy to an urban/industrial economy can be facilitated only by education. The debate over the choice between primary education on the one hand and tertiary on the other is a serious one. India needs both solvent primary education and innovation higher education.
